

In Bruges

With the United States in such Peril
Is the hero we seek Colin Farrell?

No

But who is to say

That the hero we seek, is his character, Ray
And we all know he'll make it do what it do!

So

Another pulp story of two hit men waiting to enter hell
And for their botched sin this will be an easy sell.

In Bruges has the feel of Tarantino of old
But the crafty dialogue lacks sincere soul.

Mr. Q writes for the Real:

Riting

Equals

Actual

Life

And within the REAL there is comedy

Because REAL foundation is tragedy

And for that I like the character, Ray

We need to see more morally conflicted heroes today.

I know this doesn't sound fair

But at least these heroes care.

In such times, art should push the status quo

But this humorous film won't do so.

So if you need a surreal escape

Check this film out on your next cheap date.

Film: B- (Decent Humor, Good Plot Movement Interesting Charactes)
